Synopsis

Savannah Harris vowed to leave behind her old life as an intrepid investigative reporter. But when a friend raises suspicions about two migrant workers who've gone missing from the sleepy coastal town Savannah calls home, her curiosity spikes. As ever more eerie incidents begin afflicting the area, each works to draw Savannah out of her seclusion and raise the stakes for both Savannah and the surrounding community. Even as Savannah's new boarder, Clive Miller, makes her feel things she thought long forgotten, she suspects he's hiding something too, and he's not the only one. Doubts collide in Savannah's mind: Who can she really trust? As secrets emerge and danger closes in, Savannah must choose between faith and uncertainty. One wrong decision might spell the end not just for her, but for everyone around her. Will she unravel the mystery in time, or will doubt get the best of her?

Customer Reviews

This book starts out when Savannah's husband and young daughter were killed when the car Savannah was supposed to drive blew up and killed them. So far, there were no leads as to the killers. During her sorrow, Savannah moved to a house on an acreage where she could be alone and feel safe. She lived near, and helped out with migrant workers, and one of the women from there came to get her to see her father before he died from cancer, so she went to the hospital to see him. He whispered to her that he was being murdered and wanted her to find out who did it. From there on, a series of events kept happening - her cell phone disappeared, her best friend was found beat up and in serious condition, a note appeared in her house, and she felt someone was trying to hurt her. A very nice man came to answer an ad she had put in the paper and wanted to rent her carriage house. He was there to find out who had killed his wife, and they started working together to find the killers. Savannah had once been an investigative reporter and was known for her stories and her reporting, but since the accident, she had gone to writing or editing books. People from the migrant camp had disappeared and no one even tried to find them, as they thought they had gone back to Mexico. One of those was a good friend of Savannah and she knew she would not have left without telling her. Savannah noticed a man following her, and saw someone in the woods spying on her, which bothered her a lot. The man in her carriage house, Clive, helped her and was trying to keep her safe. In the meantime, they were falling in love. The killer would leave a flattened penney at the scene of each incident.
