Project Dragonfly (Ben Hood Thrillers Book 23)

Synopsis

A beautiful young Chinese reporter vanishes while investigating suspicions that uranium is being illegally mined by Chinese at the abandoned Mary Katherine mine in Far North Queensland. A Chinese film crew visit the area while making a movie re-tracing the steps of the missing reporter. There are those who want this movie to be made for both financial and political reasons and others who will kill to stop it. Ben Hood is hired to protect the cast and crew. They are all walking into a treacherous plot involving political Chinese power brokers who will stop at nothing to destroy the current Chinese government with nuclear weapons if necessary. If Project Dragonfly succeeds it could alter world history and not necessarily for the best.

Customer Reviews

Another great Ben Hood read. Spoiler alert for those who don't want to know what the books about. This one starts with a body. Medical Examiner Dawn Stone is speaking with Sergeant Ross Davidson. She tell him the man was tortured before he died. The body was found in the Australian Gold Coast. The victim was a screenplay writer. A man who was writing that screenplay for a movie to be shot in Australia. The movie is a Chinese production. John Cheng is the mans name and why someone tortured and murdered him is the question Sgt. Davidson will be looking into. Rodney Reid, owns the VIP protection agency in Australia. Ben Hood his best investigator and has arrived at Rod's house after Rod asked him to come over. Ben is looking to take some time off. He's quite wealthy and doesn't have to work but does take some assignments from Rod now and then. So far some of them have been extremely dangerous and Ben would like to spend time as his farm. Rod wants Ben to take a job. According to Rod the job could be dangerous and it involves Lilly Yong a famous Chinese actress and a movie about a missing reporter. So begins another great Ben Hood read. This one has Ben, Lilly Yong, her sister Lixue, Rod, Rose, Akira, Bell, John Wei who's Yong's male body guard, Jia Bao who's Lilly's best friend, a group of Chinese with a mission, the Dragonfly Project, a supposedly closed and deserted mine in Australia the Mary Kathleen, uranium, a reporter Chi Nuan who disappeared and is presumed dead, a woman named Joanne Santos, helicopter in flight in the middle of the night, another woman this one named Mia Zhang Ben's old friend Detective Jeff Mallard, Ben's spook acquaintance Major Curtin, murder, attempted murder, intrigue and Ben Hood in the middle of another damned fine who dun it. Five Stars.

This author has picked an interesting seam of plots and characters to mine. He changes them (except for his hero) as the need arises. He is in a semi permanent slithering brawl with the Australian Police force , who seem to range fro the predictably beautiful ones to harridans. This is a good book well worth buying and reading for its explanation of the interaction between the evil peril (the Chinese) and the Australian police.

If anyone is ever needed to save the world Ben Hood is the person to call. This time he is hired to protect a beautiful Chinese actress but the job very quickly becomes more than that. I do not want to spoil the story but let's say that by the end the Chinese Government owes Ben big time. Buy it, read it, and you will be a happy person.
